Definitions

Modification

This terms refers to changes made to the treatment plan before it is finalized and approved. Modifications are typically done during the planning stage and initial diagnostics but before the patient begins the treatment. These adjustments ensure the plan is tailored to meet the specific need of the patient as interpreted by the dental professional.

Refinement

Refinements are minor corrections and adjustments made to the tooth's positioning during the course of the treatment. They are part of the ongoing treatment process and often anticipated in the initial plan. Refinements are used to address any discrepancies between the planned tooth movement and the actual progress as the treatment unfolds.

Warranty

Phase Ortho ("Supplier") warrants that all dental aligner products supplied to meet applicable legal requirements, are not adulterated or misbranded, and are free from material and workmanship defects when used as instructed. The warranty covers aligners for two years and retainers for 90 days from shipment, with certain limitations, including misuse, modifications, and errors in submitted records. If a product fails to meet these standards, Supplier may replace it or issue a credit. Supplier disclaims all implied warranties and does not guarantee treatment outcomes.
